The Legacy Continues

Small ship cruising is our legacy… and our passion. Over the years, BSSA has preserved the integrity of its heritage by remaining true to my father’s vision, maintaining a casual, unpretentious and intimate atmosphere onboard. We choose every aspect of our cruises – from ports of call, guest lecturers and crew – to provide a memorable experience. Our agile small ships can go to remote shores and places where large cruise ships simply cannot navigate. Passengers have come to appreciate the non-commercialized, casual vacation that is truly our “brand.” I am proud to introduce my son, Peter Palumbo, a third-generation Blount that has recently joined the family business. Dad would have been very proud… the legacy continues!

In 2019, we will return to Panama, an itinerary that was a favorite of my father’s and one requested often by our passengers. A pioneer at heart, my father took pride in creating a real adventure for his travelers. I can fondly recall Dad searching high and low for a black fedora hat that he wanted to give the “chief” of the San Blas when he arrived that season.

I hope that as you browse this brochure, you will get a feel for what cruising on a BSSA small ship is all about: camaraderie, learning, fun and friendship. Simply choose a destination, then contact our Reservations Team and we’ll see to it that your Blount vacation is everything you expect it to be – and more.

We look forward to seeing you aboard!

Nancy Blount, President

In 1910 E.B. Blount & Sons Oyster Company in Warren, Rhode Island was a thriving family business. In coastal Rhode Island, the oyster beds were bountiful and every morning fresh oysters went out by the crate to eager buyers around the state. But in 1938 the Great New England Hurricane changed everything. The devastation caused by the hurricane lasted for decades. Blount’s once thriving oyster beds, were left in shambles.

Luther Blount became VP of E.B. Blount & Sons and was determined to keep the family business alive. In 1947, the young engineering graduate got to work on a series of innovations. By creating a new method of steaming clams, Blount shellfish made its way into Campbell’s soups clam chowder. And as a result, into homes across New England.

Two years later Luther Blount transformed the family business from oysters to shipbuilding. He took the once bustling oyster processing plant and turned it into a workspace for constructing a new oyster boat. In doing so he found a new calling in shipbuilding. By 1962 Blount had built 100 vessels including New York’s Circle Line ferries and introduced the concept of dinner boats in ports around the U.S. Luther found inspiration for future cruise itineraries by personally delivering the vessels he built. For the years that followed, the Blouts combined business and pleasure by spending their vacations aboard the family boat; sailing, fishing, and enjoying time together on the water.

Soon friends and family asked to join their trips and a vision began to take shape in Luther’s mind. With his signature sense of determination, this vision soon became American Canadian Caribbean Line, a new small ship cruise line, offering voyages unlike any other available. By 1970 the inventor in Luther blended with his adventurous side and he began to patent unique features of his boats. These patents would one day become the signature of Blount Small Ship Adventures, including a retractable pilot-house and a bow ramp.

Luther’s patented bow ramp made it possible to step into the waters of secluded coves and shallow riverbanks; glass bottom boats provided passengers with a diver’s eye; and his patented retractable pilot house – combined with the shallow draft of the ships – made previously inaccessible routes possible. Blount continued to create interesting cruise itineraries from the 1970's - 1990's, taking passengers beyond the U.S. to places like Panama, Belize and Canada. A reputation for adventurous cruising was built.

From the white sandy beaches of the Caribbean to the lush hills of Central America; from the serene waters of the Great Lakes to the rich history of the Northeast, Blount continued to seek out new unexplored destinations and waterways only Blount boats could access, building the only overnight cruising vessels able to transit the historic Erie Canal.

Back on land, Luther continued to revive his family legacy. He worked tirelessly to bring oysters back to Rhode Island, in the waters of his beloved Narragansett Bay. He even bought an island refuge to help the cause. His major donation to a local university created a program that taught students about marine wildlife, and challenged them with cultivating new oyster beds. The goal remained simple and clear: rebuild what Rhode Island had lost back in 1938.

Luther passed the reins of the cruise business to his daughter Nancy in 2006 and his boat building business is now led by daughters Marcia and Julie. In 2010, after a complete retrofit of the fleet, what was once American Canadian Caribbean Line was rebranded to honor the legacy of the man who started it all. Blount Small Ship Adventures was born.

Today, a third generation of Blounts have joined both the cruise line and Blount Boats. With a proud nod to our history, we excitedly look ahead to what the next half-century will bring.
Different by Design

A legendary American ship builder and innovator, Luther Blount envisioned travelers getting closer to a destination. Retractable pilot houses. Bow ramps. A shallow draft that allows the ship to sail in less than seven feet of water. They’re all innovations you’ll find onboard our ships.

Vista View Lounge

Enjoy 180-degree panoramas from our comfortable lounge. This social setting is perfect for getting to know your fellow passengers.

The Retractable Pilot House

Built with the purpose of bringing travelers to places that larger ships simply cannot go, the retractable pilot house allows our ships to slip, with inches to spare, under low bridges and narrow locks.

The Bow Landing & Shallow Draft

Disembark directly from the ship’s bow onto secluded beaches in remote locales. Our shallow draft allows us to dock with the yachts, avoiding long lines and tourist traps.

The Glass-Bottom Boat

This unique vessel provides passengers with a diver’s-eye-view of the world beneath the waves without getting wet. The launch is available on our Caribbean and Central America itineraries.

On select cruises we offer an onboard early arrival package for $150 per person, including one dinner and one breakfast. This allows the guest to arrive one day prior to departure. Boarding is at 5 PM.

CAN YOU BOOK OUR AIRLINE RESERVATIONS?
We do not book air reservations. Please check with your Reservation Specialist or Travel Agent to ensure your flights meet with requirements for both arrival disembarkation and departure disembarkation as they vary by cruise.

WHAT'S AVAILABLE FOR SOLO TRAVELERS?
Several options are available if you are traveling alone. We do have select cabins configured as single accommodations and priced for single occupancy only. We also offer a “Willing to Share” program that allows you to pay a per person rate for a double occupancy room. You will be waitlisted for a same-gender traveling companion, however should no other person reserve under this program you will be placed alone in that double occupancy cabin. We also have designated double occupancy cabins you may reserve at an additional cost. Please ask your reservationist for details.

WHAT IS THE COST OF THE PORT CHARGES?
Port charges vary by cruise and include passenger taxes and charges for services imposed by governmental or quasi-governmental entities. They are subject to change without notice.

SHOULD I BRING MY VALUABLES ONBOARD?
When traveling internationally, it is strongly recommended that U.S. residents have their valuables, such as cameras, binoculars, radios, watches, jewelry, etc., registered with U.S. Customs before departure at a Customs Office in their area or at embarkation. There are no safes provided in cabins. We cannot accept responsibility for valuables lost or stolen.

WHAT IS YOUR SMOKING POLICY?
